

DRIVER PULLED THE WRONG LINE

Harcbrained Pilot of One of Pain's Vans Nearly Kills People on Nuuanu Street.

The gross stupidity of one of Pain's ark engineers nearly caused a serious accident on Nuuanu street yesterday afternoon. About 3 o'clock a car laden with passengers was waiting at the switch on Nuuanu street close to W. W. Hall's residence. The driver having succeeded in slipping a few minutes off of the time schedule, was indulging in a cigarette and meditating on his chances of getting a job with the Rapid Transit Company. Presently the car from the valley below in sight. It also had a full complement of passengers. The driver had gone to the whip, and the ancient structure creaked as it tore down the hill. Instead of checking speed as he approached the waiting car he increased it, and laying on the reins exerted the best in front of him to yet greater effort. He drove a regular George Smith, and soon saw his own termination, which was both speedy and complete. He erred in pulling the wrong line when he came to the switch. Had he not done this all might have been well and his name might have found a place in the year's book of records. He certainly established a new mark for 250 yards unpassed. His nerve failed him at the crucial moment, however, and instead of turning to the left he pulled to the right. Then followed a crash which jarred the passengers and stirred up their feelings considerably. The down car ran off the track, and the nondescript motive power fell in a heap and were topped off by the antiquated van. The poor brutes were badly skinned about the knees. Luckily, indeed, almost miraculously, the passengers of the cars escaped serious injury, and after a delay of ten minutes for repairs, went a-jogging on their way again.

Hilo's Kind Saloonkeeper.

HILO, Hawaii.—I take pleasure in sending in my first report as an army officer to our white-winged messenger. To begin with, we must have been having very nice meetings ever since we came here. The people of the island treat us with the greatest respect and courtesy, and show a growing interest in our work. The captain went to Oahu on Wednesday, a small place about fourteen miles from Hilo. The sergeant-major and myself held our usual meetings. The crowd in the open-air seemed greatly interested, and in the inside meeting two hands were raised for prayer. On the captain's return I was rejoiced to hear that his visit had not been in vain, but that one soul had come out and given his heart to God. Thursday night we went down to Waiakae and held open-air meeting in front of the saloon, drawing quite a large crowd. While our meeting was in progress it commenced to rain, and the bartender called us under the veranda, and the saloonkeeper gave us a dollar for our fare home. May God bless and save him. He gives us lots of encouragement to go ahead and do all the good we can. We had glorious week-end meetings, and believe that the Lord will use us to build up His kingdom here. We have fairly good Junior attendance. The editor of the Hawaiian Herald, Mr. J. T. Stacker, very kindly prints all our announcements gratuitously, which, of course, we appreciate exceedingly.—Lieutenant J. E. McCormick, for Captain Bamberg, in War Cry.

Among the passengers who left on the Moana Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ripley and their three children, who go to make their home in Australia. The other fellow who tried his muscle with Hart had the best of the bout, and Hart went down with a dislocated shoulder.

He intends to return to Liverpool, and from there go to Wales.
